(网族成才之道)

Jointly offered by Information Systems and Management

GE1206 is to show junior students how to set career goals, create web-based career planning systems, and develop social networks that will take students to their way to professional success.

GE1206 is designed for you if you:

- Are puzzled about your career choices?
- Desire to meet students from other majors as lifelong friends?
- Want to design and implement a successful career path?
- Need to learn how to harness the web as a career planning tool?
- Wish to create your own social network to succeed together?

In GE1206, you will

- Learn practical methods of career planning,
- Meet successful professionals in various fields,
- Conduct group studies on various professions,
- Create student-centered online career planning systems,
- Network with mentors and fellow students, and most importantly,
- Create your very own implementable career plan.

Students of all majors and backgrounds are welcome!
