Multivariate Spline Approximation of the SignedDistance Function

RENHONG WANG

Dalian University of Technology, China

Email: `renhong@dlut.edu.cn`

The signed distance function can effectively support many geometry processing tasks such as decimates, smoothing and shape reconstruction since it provides efficient access to distance estimates. In this talk, we present an adaptive method to approximate the signed distance function of a smooth curve by using polynomial splines over type-2 triangulation. The trimmed offsets are also studied.