LEDWABA Lehlogonolo Polaki Iviwe	#LEDWABA Lehlogonolo Polaki Iviwe, IEEE IES STUDENT & YOUNG PROFESSIONALS PAPER ASSISTANCE (IES-SYPA), The Young Professionals & Student Activity Committee (YPS-AC) of the Industrial Electronics Society (IES) offers financial support to the IEEE IES Student members to attend IES conferences. We have pre-allocated 53 IES Student and Young Professionals Paper Assistances (IES-SYPA) up to US$2000 each for conferences in this year. It should be pointed out that in the case of a large number of applicants having obtained a high score, the committee can reduce the travel assistance amount to US$1000 per applicant. This exceptional measure is in order to support the travel of higher number of excellent applicants. On the other hand, the number of the IES-SYPAs for the IECON or other conferences could be increased to follow the need, within budget capability. In this year for the IEEE INDIN'19 we have received 12 applications for the IEEE IES STUDENT & YOUNG PROFESSIONALS PAPER ASSISTANCE (IES-SYPA). The average weighted score is 6.88. We would like to announce 5 IES-SYPA (recognition diploma plus up-to USD 2000 travel costs reimbursement) recipients (see the table below). LI Zongxi	LI Xianming, #LI Zongxi, ZHAO Yingbin, XIE Haoran, LI Qing, "Incorporating Effective Global Information via Adaptive Gate Attention for Text Classification", The dominant text classification studies focus on training classifiers using textual instances only or introducing external knowledge (e.g., hand-craft features and domain expert knowledge). In contrast, some corpus-level statistical features, like word frequency and distribution, are not well exploited. Our work shows that such simple statistical information can enhance classification performance both efficiently and significantly compared with several baseline models. In this paper, we propose a classifier with gate mechanism named Adaptive Gate Attention model with Global Information (AGA+GI), in which the adaptive gate mechanism incorporates global statistical features into latent semantic features and the attention layer captures dependency relationship within the sentence. To alleviate the overfitting issue, we propose a novel Leaky Dropout mechanism to improve generalization ability and performance stability. Our experiments show that the proposed method can achieve better accuracy than CNN-based and RNN-based approaches without global information on several benchmarks. , 22 February 2020.

WANG Xuan	#WANG Xuan, Certificate of Completion (with Honours) for Advanced Tutor Series for Ph.D. Students (ATS), This series is to engage Ph.D. students in prominent topics in university teaching and guide them towards reflecting how they can apply that knowledge to their own teaching. Modules will be available through Canvas as online videos of about 30 minutes each with supporting materials. To complete each module, participants should submit a written reflection based on assignment prompts. Modules in the series include these topics: Lecturing, Facilitating Discussion and Becoming a Reflective Teacher. Individual Module Completion (with Honours): Participants take the pre-quiz, work through the video materials, and take the post-quiz for a module. In addition, they complete a written assignment for that module. If they score at least 70% on each post-quiz for a given module and submit a satisfactory written assignment

#BEADMAN Kay Mei Ling, HO Katie, NG Isabella, Co-curator, "Everyday Practice at 20 - Chan Sai-lok Solo Exhibition. Curated by Kay Mei Ling Beadman, Katie Ho and Isabella Ng", Hidden Space is delighted to present Chan Sai-lok's solo exhibition Everyday Practice at 20, the culmination of a series of experiments and exhibitions that began in 2018 and have continued evolving across time and spaces between New York, Hong Kong, Denmark and back home in Hong Kong again.

Chan began his "red" series during a 2018 residency in New York. Experiencing a culture and history so remote from his own, he used the residency as an opportunity to unlearn his artistic ideology and creative trajectory; to explore states of flux and connection where nobody knows where the changes will take us. As Chan explored the relationships between painting, text, words, and identity, works have emerged that fuse colour, culturally specific materials, found objects from Hong Kong and the US, and intertwined texts in English and Cantonese. His text – fragmented, layered, overlapping, printed, painted, cut from acrylic sheet - range from his own poetry, lines from the American Declaration of Independence (taken from the information package given to new immigrants by the US government), to seminal Cantonese song lyrics and graffiti.

What initially appear to be 'straightforward' paintings, on closer inspection are translucent coloured silk layered over painted rice paper, flags, over 3D acrylic Chinese characters taken apart into individual phonemes, the silk itself printed with digital photographs taken on the streets. With their unique materiality and cultural significance, exercise books, silk, flags, rice paper, and joss paper have become painting material for Chan, while the exhibition site itself has become a key locale of painting.

In 2019, as Hong Kong was hit by unprecedented turmoil, as more and more graffiti appeared in the streets, erased, re-written, painted over, Chan's work had already mirrored it and grew to incorporate it. In his notes he writes, "The history of a place moves forwards slowly as it sinks and floats during the process of writing and being erased. The true face of history is formed during the resonance of struggle and contradiction." Chan contemplates his own and his city's linked identities. In questioning how he should act, and his future during artistic creation, it has become increasingly important to him to persevere in his way of life through daily art practice as a means to engage with constantly changing environments.

This exhibition marks the finale of the "red" series... and the beginning of a new stage., Everyday Practice at 20, Hidden Space, Hong Kong, 28 May - 21 June 2020.

ECKHOFF Daniel

SHAW Jeffrey, BOTSCHUIVER Theo, ABEL Larry, CHAN Joseph, #ECKHOFF Daniel, CHOY John, Artist, Developer, "Virtual Sculptures", In the late 1970s, Jeffrey Shaw and his Eventstructure Research Group partner Theo Botschuijver embarked on a series of computer graphic and augmented reality experiments that were inspired by two technologies: first, an age-old illusion technique called 'Pepper's Ghost' that dates back to the 16th century—a technique that uses a see-through mirror to create 'ghost' images that seemingly float in space; second, the pioneering virtual reality head-mounted display (HMD) invented by Ivan Sutherland in 1968, which he called the 'Sword of Damocles'. Their first artwork that resulted from their joint research was "Virtual Sculptures" in 1981. It utilised an Apple II computer to create the 3D computer graphic imagery, a tripod mounted CRT monitor fitted with a Fresnel lens and see-through mirror and an interactive design that allowed the viewer to rotate and tilt this monitor so as to discover animated computer-generated virtual objects floating about at different locations in the physical exhibition space. This artful apparatus prefigured the augmented reality (AR) systems that were introduced into the market some twenty years later and which are currently a fast-developing industry. While this artwork has recently entered the collection of the ZKM Center for Art and Media in Karlsruhe, Germany, the exhibition at WYSIWYG will be the first public showing of its re-make since the original no longer exists. The reconstruction of the CRT monitor, Fresnel lens, see-through mirror and tripod assembly are as faithful to the original as possible. Similarly, the appearance of the animated computer graphic images (simple low resolution wireframe objects) is also replicated, but now using a newly programmed PC rather than the obsolete Apple II computer and the subLOGIC A2-3D1 software that ran the original. For its exhibition at WYSIWYG, this artwork is being presented with its original content in a newly conceived installation format that is locally contextualised. The interactive apparatus is positioned at the centre of a large 7m diameter all-encompassing panoramic photograph, so that its virtual AR objects can be seen to be floating within the scenery of that photograph. The Hong Kong photographer John Choy was commissioned to make a black and white panoramic photograph of Hong Kong's Central district for this purpose. Choy deploys an aesthetic strategy he developed in earlier panoramic photos taken of Hong Kong, wherein this urban landscape is completely devoid of people. In the context of the installation at Osage, this means that only the artwork's virtual objects now occupy Central's eerily vacant environment., HKACT! Act 9 WYSIWYG Jeffrey Shaw Solo Exhibition, Osage Gallery, Hong Kong, 13 November 2019 - 21 June 2020.

KAISER Christine Maria	#KAISER Christine Maria, Other, "Conference alongside the 9th Bucharest Biennale: Contemporary Art Biennials – Our Hegemonic Machines in States of Emergency", In 2020, in the midst of a new form of crisis, one might feel a certain affection for "hegemonic machines" like biennials, which aim for an international discourse in a democratizing manner in a different light. With all its underlying problems (canonizing, hegemony, colonial pasts, dominant art market, political influences), biennials tend to establish international discourse, at best, rooted in local cultural specificities/identities. States of emergency also enable states to not only protect but also control their citizens. Biennials are, as Oliver Marchart has remarked, big hegemonic machines. They make proposals about how to understand the world in which we live—locally and globally—, how to be in the world as a subject within a regional and national frame, and how race, class, and gender are positioned. As a result, biennials are part of a bio-political process in the framework of specific local situations. Biennials are deeply involved in politics of display, politics of sites, politics of transfer and translation, and they produce in each single case specific politics of knowledge. The scales of biennials are co-implicated not only with each other but also with different understandings of politics: contestation, resistance, dissent, hegemony, and empowerment. For this conference (also in times of crisis), we are not only interested in how content directly agitates, but also in the formats, ideas, and concepts that are delivered through the politics of display, through specific forms of production and dissemination, through proposed communities and subjectivities—the more subtle ways of the bio-political arena when we encounter art. What forms can we use in states of emergency? In the conference, we want to critically explore the pitfalls and benefits of these machines, how to use them progressively and how to keep and strengthen the cultural exchange they can provide. Biennials in that sense can become imaginary machines to shape and influence possible futures. Organised by Prof Dr Dorothee Richter (Head of PhD in Practice in Curating, University of Reading/ Zurich University of the Arts) and Ronald Kolb, Scientific researcher PhD in Practice in Curating). Respondents to the speakers are PhD Candidates of the PhD in Practice in Curating (University of Reading/ Zurich University of the Arts) and students of the MAS in Curating., 27 June 2020.

Committed curators as practitioners and researchers are those who are able to initiate, manage, communicate, and implement such projects on different levels. Consequently, it is important for universities worldwide teaching curatorial practice, to offer to their students the necessary skills to engage with a growing network of transnationally working scholars and curators. The Postgraduate Programme in Curating of the ZHdK, has, traditionally, an international group of students and lecturers, and is therefore in a unique position to take these developments a step further by providing professional training for agents working in contemporary art curating and research in social transformation processes by actively building with partners a network of relevant actors in different regions. This fosters trans-local and transcultural learning formats in real-life through local contexts in a series of practice projects and knowledge production (workshops and conferences). These learning formats are meant to be self-reflective, it considers ones own positions and relations in the art and in society as well as on social situations in the respective environment and therefore opens up for more than one reality. In these contexts, special attention has to be paid to context awareness, de-colonization processes, working with complexity, inter- and trans-disciplinary approaches. , 13 March 2020.
MAK Wai Yee	#MAK Wai Yee, Other, "A Special on Online Art - Rethinking Art for the Online World: Online Art, Online Exhibitions, Online Audience", The pandemic forced many activities to move online, and the art world was not spared; but what does it mean to move art online? The pandemic provides an opportunity to rethink art on and for the medium of the Internet. Which art is "exhibited" online (as opposed to just "documented")? What is an online exhibition of art? The World-wide web "is" an exhibition of offline art, and any artist's website is an exhibition of the artist's physical art: but is that really an "exhibition"? or is it just the equivalent of a book describing the art? What do artists do online that they don't do in a physical space? What is the role of the curator in an online exhibition? What is the role of the gallery and of the museum for online art? One line of action that opens up online is collaboration, but collaboration has never been widespread in the visual arts. Why is it natural for sound artists to collaborate and perform as a unit while visual artists rarely do? Why is it normal for the Rolling Stones to be a band whereas a visual artist is expected to work individually, and often in solitude? Historically the moments of great crises have often resulted in an explosion of creativity: the "Spanish flu" and World War I witnessed the birth of revolutionary movements like Dadaism, De Stijl, Constructivism besides the first jazz record and the boom of cinema; the polio pandemic and World War II witnessed the birth of bebop jazz, abstract expressionism, existentialist philosophy and Italian neorealist cinema. Could the Covid pandemic, coupled with international tensions, be the trigger for another quantum jump in cultural creativity? , 23 June 2020.

	# YIU Siu Lung , CHAN Suze, Co-curator, "玩樂。無聊。崇拜。", South Korean-born German philosopher Byung-Chul Han once quoted an example to explain the Italian philosopher Giorgio Agamben's concept of 'profanation': During the recession period in Greece, a group of children discovered a large amount of banknotes in a ruined house. Instead of using them as what money is supposed to, they playing with them and tearing them to shreds. Profanation is an act of taking sacred things from gods and turning it into mortal usage. By quoting this example, Han portraits a post-apocalypse world where money has lost its meaning, and we are shredding paper for fun, like the 'profanation' act of the children. Perhaps in arts, 'profanation' could be described as the way of how artists create through appropriation and conceptualisation. Both ways are giving new meaning towards pre-existed objects and subjects. Curated by Alex Yiu and Suze Chan, 'Play. Boredom. Worship.' will present new artworks from six emerging artists from Hong Kong. Through dialogue and discussion with the curators, the artists interpret the idea with different perspectives and angles with their artworks., Play. Boredom. They all took place in the same city, Guangzhou, a southern metropolitan with long history of vernacular civil culture and migrant flows. In the films, I went to two different kinds of enclaves in the city, the African commerce neighborhood and domestic urban village. Instead of finding a character, a story as the "other", I made different sort of dialogues with the human and nonhuman actors while traversing these layered landscape. Deep in the darkness, a girl murmurs a scattered diary of her lonely soul amid the city life. An intimate archive of fleeting sensations amid China's rapid urbanization, especially on the Urban-Village, one of the most drastic scenes of Chinese urbanization. 	#ZHANG Zimu, ZHENG Lu Xinyuan, Artist, "Just Like Any Other Night", Urban villages are one of the very significant phenomenon in Chinese urbanization process, especially in the pearl river delta. Because of complex land ownership, high development cost and interest disputes from different parties, they remain a high degree of autonomy, outside central urban planning. At the turn of 2018, we went to two urban-villages in Guangzhou and befriended with several young people working and living under precarious conditions. Through daily dialogue and exchange, we found that digital life deeply influenced and shaped their urban experience and self-identification, which also both filtered and penetrated the actual urban-village physicality, becoming the geological elements. Through dialogue and collaboration, we created this film together to archive the materiality and fleeting impulses of the vanishing city space., Video Vortex #12 (vv12), Spazju Kreattiv, Valletta, Malta, 26-29 September 2019.

	#ZHANG Zimu, Artist, "平平无奇的白天与晚上", 重新梳理、呈現兩位影像工作者 (心源·zimu) 在 2017-2018 年交接之時發起的城中村影像計劃的過程和素材。項目關注在城中村里居住、工作的高速流動的年輕人和城市空間的關係，以及中介這種關係的日常物質、親密情感和數字情景，是一個城市年輕人之間在城中村這個特殊場域的互相打探與信任的開啟。與項目中活躍的女性參與者 Amy 的日常交往和日後的友情延續，也讓一種女性經驗更加顯著，這種經驗圍繞城市化空間中女性在物理和心理上的敏感性，基於困惑與慾望的自我對策。 , Architecture, or Architecture, Fei Arts, Guangzhou, China, 07 December 2019 - 30 March 2020.
	#ZHANG Zimu, Curator, "生态影像—拍摄于过热的人类时代 - 1. 特别放映“乡村之眼—藏地牧民生态影像” 2. 生态影像实践主题论坛", According to recent media reports, this June was the hottest June ever recorded on earth. After this piece of news passed from the airwaves, the following media headlines and social media feeds included the Arctic ice melt, Amazon forest fire, the Venice flood... There seems to be evidence of scientists terming the current geological era as the Anthropocene, which states that human activity has transcended all other factors on its impact on earth. We have already witnessed many sci-fi epic productions on apocalyptic futures as well as films advocating environmentalism. But departing from a human-centric conventional mindset, most non-human lives and matters are presented as oppositional binaries that are either passive, singular and powerless, or anthropomorphic, lovely and not-my-breed kind of evil. The film industry as a product from the second industrial revolution has been shaped by global capital flow, technology acceleration and thus became a standard costly product which trades directly with human dopamine. In a highly controlled but ecologically uncontrollable planet, as well as the capitalistic tracks engulfing every heterogeneous space, what kind of moving image can we still create? Facing the ontological crises such as deficiency and fallacy, how can we still cast our gaze and mind onto the other living creatures and non-living matters. Through this themed screening and forum, we want to focus on "ecological image", which confronts the challenge of the Anthropocene from the ontology and practice of the moving image as well as engaging in social production and life philosophy within creative practice. We invited several guests and alternative social communities who have been working and living long-term in the crossing field of ecology and moving image. Coming from various scenes of action ranging from the countrysides to cities, farmlands to highland meadows, we will connect with plants, animals and other living entities as well as media landscapes and other forms of new materials. Hopefully we can expand the thinking and action path of contemporary ecological moving image through this screening and forum section., 3rd Beijing International Short Film Festival (BISFF 2019), Beijing, China, 29 November - 09 December 2019.

ZHANG Ruifeng	CHAN Chak Keung, GEN Masao, #ZHANG Ruifeng, Best ES&T Letters Paper of 2019, The paper "Heterogeneous SO₂ Oxidation in Sulfate Formation by Photolysis of Particulate Nitrate" co-authored by Masao Gen, Ruifeng Zhang, Dan Dan Huang, Yongjie Li, and Chak K. Chan investigates a new pathway for the formation of sulfate during extreme haze events in China. Their work points to a new pathway for sulfate formation, via the oxidation of sulfur dioxide by the NO₂ and hydroxyl radicals produced upon ultraviolet irradiation of nitrate. The research was published in the prestigious journal Environmental Science & Technology Letters and was recognised as one of the journal's five Best Paper Awards winners in 2019 and the only winner in the atmospheric pollution research area. It is considered timely and novel and also had the potential to change the way we think about a particular topic or process., Environmental Science & Technology Letters, 2020.
