Assistant Professor Andra le Roux-Kemp Awarded a Y-Rating by the NRF

We are pleased to announce that Dr Andra le Roux-Kemp, Assistant Professor of CityU School of Law, was recently awarded a Y-rating as a Promising Young Researcher by the National Research Foundation (NRF) of South Africa, based on her affiliation as a Visiting Research Fellow at the School of Law, University of the Witwatersrand (Johannesburg, South Africa).

The NRF-rating system is endorsed and managed by the National Research Foundation of South Africa and is used to benchmark the quality of researchers against the best in the world. The rating of individuals focuses on the quality and impact of their research outputs over the past eight years preceding the application, and takes into account the evaluation made by a panel of South African and international peers. The outcome of this peer assessment is used to rate researchers in terms of rating categories and enables successfully rated researchers to access incentive research funding for the duration of their rating period (6 years), and linked to the specific rating category achieved.

Dr le Roux-Kemp’s Y-rating as a researcher in the Promising Young Researcher category – which is for researchers below the age of 40 and within five years of being awarded their PhD – will be valid from 1 January 2016 until 31 December 2021.
