

SOUTHEAST ASIA RESEARCH CENTRE ANNUAL REPORT 2006

The South-East Asia Research Centre (SEARC) was inaugurated on 27 February 2001 as a faculty-based research centre within Humanities and Social Sciences (FHS). In 2006, it was affiliated with the newly formed Department of Asian and International Studies (AIS). Professor William Case (Professor, Department of Asian and International Studies) was appointed Director of SEARC in July 2006. Dr Vivienne Wee (Associate Professor, Department of Asian and International Studies) is Associate Director.

During its first four years of operation, SEARC established a strong international and regional reputation as a focal point for the study of political, economic, and social issues in contemporary South-East Asia. Though possessing its own budget for research projects, SEARC actively sought competitive external grant funding and commissioned a range of research projects, leading to a steady output of high-quality publications and working papers. It also attracted many respected scholars from outside the region who, in conducting seminars and carrying out research projects, helped further to enliven the Centre. SEARC also contributed more broadly to academic and public debate at City University (CityU) by regularly sponsoring public addresses, forums, roundtables, and international conferences.

In 2004, SEARC's founding Director took up a new position in the United States. Thus, during 2005 and the first half of 2006, SEARC was directed by the Dean of FHS, though only in an acting capacity. SEARC had been established with a budget from the University of HKD12.5 million over a six-year period, reduced in its second year of operation to HKD8.5 million. During 2005, the University lent some short-term support, while SEARC's core members tried to secure external funding. But by 2006, salary commitments and outstanding grant projects left SEARC with scant resources. However, with the appointment of a new Director and the winning of a large external grant by the associate Director, SEARC has begun a campaign of revitalization.

MISSION, AIMS AND RESEARCH THEMES

SEARC's mission statement reflects the development of the Centre and the changing role of CityU within Hong Kong's higher education sector.

SEARC's aims are:

- To further advance the Centre's internationally recognized research programme by making new contributions to knowledge of political, economic, and social developments in contemporary South-East Asia
- To undertake new research and produce high quality academic publications on South-East Asia
- To establish mutually beneficial links with international researchers and institutions involved with South-East Asia
- To provide the Hong Kong government, business community and civil society organizations with policy relevant information about the region
- To enhance the study of South-East Asia in Hong Kong and to increase understanding of the region within the CityU and Hong Kong communities.

SEARC'S research themes

In late 2006, the SEARC Management Committee approved adoption of three new research themes, supplanting those that had in been in place since the Centre's inception. These themes, designed to provide broad research direction, while reflecting changes in contemporary South-East Asia and the expertise of its new researchers, will contribute to the Centre's revitalization.

SEARC's new research themes, grouped under a heading of 'State-Society Interface', include:

'Economic openings, state mediations, societies in flux'

Research conducted under this theme will address new patterns of foreign investment in South-East Asia, emanating largely from China, but also from new private equity firms, most of which while headquartered in the West, have a large presence in Hong Kong.

This theme will also promote research addressing South-East Asia's role as the motor force behind East Asian free trade agreements and notions of an East Asian 'community' and 'identity'. But more than focusing on cross-national activities and their mediation by governments, these studies will explore major implications for political and societal restructuring.

'New democracy and contemporary autocracy'

Research conducted under this theme will focus closely on institutional questions of executive accountability and legislative activities under a range of 'hybrid' regimes. These political systems, often skilfully combining democratic procedures with authoritarian controls, are characteristic of many South-East Asian countries, including Malaysia, Singapore, Vietnam, Cambodia, and Thailand today. Parallels also exist with Hong Kong's experience, encouraging comparative analysis.

'State-society interface: contestations and convergences over gender, values, identities, rights and resources'

This theme will address a range of contested issues that are best approached using interdisciplinary tools from sociology, anthropology and other social sciences. In many respects, this what theme reflects SEARC traditionally researched most effectively. with several of its core members possessing expertise in gender, religion and ethnicity in South-East Asia and the challenges confronted by South-East Asian migrant workers in Hong Kong and elsewhere. Issues involving environment will also be explored, especially as they involve China's policies of resource extraction in the South-East Asian region. probably the theme too that best lends itself to applied research and real-world problems.

Vietnam project

In addition, as part of SEARC's revitalization, the Centre proposes to set up a specific Vietnam country project. Vietnam's rapid transition from a command economy to more marketized dealings—driven by national leadership that fully recognizes the need for change—has consisted of serious reforms and poverty reduction, while avoiding severe social dislocations. Vietnam has thus been hailed as Asia's next 'tiger' economy, with powerful implications for China and Hong Kong.

It is anticipated that new appointments of Vietnam specialists will be made to the Department of Asian and International Studies, helping SEARC to forge new synergies. Research projects undertaken through the Centre's Vietnam project, but carried out under the 'State-Society Interface' heading, may include:

- 'Old party, new economy' research This will examine the of sustainability Vietnam's rapid economic growth alongside limited political reforms. More specifically, it will ask whether within a single-party system, decision making processes can be institutionalized in ways that are essential for perpetuating rapid economic growth and development.
- Vietnam and China: comparative cross-national development and relations' This research will investigate the distinctive industrializing strategies of Vietnam and China, while recognizing the cross-national interactions and demonstration effects that affect their trajectories. It will also address the tensions that exist between new patterns of economic cooperation and persistent suspicions over security threats. Preliminary research on the Vietnam-China borderland and on Vietnamese of Chinese descent has already been initiated (see below).

The Centre's Research Agenda is available from its web site, at: http://www.cityu.edu.hk/searc/Research_Agenda.htm.

RESEARCH GRANTS

Core members of SEARC have been active in seeking funding for research projects from external competitive sources and CityU. (In past years, SEARC was also able in its own right to provide smaller amounts of funding for closely targeted research projects.) Over time, SEARC has established a critical focus on women's issues, ethnicity, religion, labour, migration and environment that has bolstered the success rate of its members in making applications. The research that has followed has contributed to academic debates across a range of fields, while also demonstrating policy relevance. awarding of grant funding in 2006, as well as the progress of funded projects is listed below:

External competitive grants

In July 2006, Dr Vivienne Wee, SEARC Associate Director, was awarded a grant HKD53 million bv the UK government's Department of International Development (DFID). This is the largest grant ever won by a researcher at CityU. The grant supports a five-year project entitled 'Women's Empowerment in Muslim Contexts: Gender, Poverty and Democratisation From the Inside Out (WEMC)'. This award is part of DFID's programme to enhance women's empowerment globally and to attain the third goal in the United Nations' Millennium Campaign. specifically, to promote gender equality and the empowerment of women. Dr project brings together Wee's innovative coalition that synergizes world-class academic institutions and leading civil society organisations. It is implemented by an international Research Programme Consortium (RPC) comprising CityU researchers collaborating institutions that includes: SEARC (CityU), International Gender Studies Centre (Oxford University). Community Department of Health Services (Aga Khan University, Pakistan), Shirkat Gah Women's Resource Centre (Pakistan), Simorgh Women's Resource and Publications Centre (Pakistan). Solidaritas Perempuan (Indonesia), Semarak Cerlang Nusa (Indonesia), Women Living Under Muslim Laws (Regional Coordination Office - Asia), and ENGENDER (Singapore, Hong Kong). Dr Catherine Chiu, Core Member of SEARC and Associate Head of AIS, is also part of this project, coordinating SEARC's research on Muslim women in Guangzhou. Dr Wee herself, apart from being the Director of the RPC, is also the lead researcher in the research on Indonesia.

The aim of this applied research project is to study women's indigenous strategies for empowerment in ways that can transform unfavourable power relations. Study will be carried out in Muslim communities and countries in four Asian sub-regions - China (East Indonesia (South-East Asia), Pakistan (South Asia), and Iran (West Asia), and it will be supplemented by analysis of cross-border interactions. However, the relevance of this project extends beyond Muslim contexts to non-Muslim milieus with other kinds of disempowering forces. The project will analyse women's empowerment strategies, identify sources of support for strengthening women's agency insiders challenging disempowering structures, build analytical capacity and strategic alliances that catalyse transformative research, and pinpoint ways for promoting good governance, democratization, and appropriate development.

During 2006. Dr Vivienne Wee. collaborating with Dr Chan Yuk Wah, Mr Chong-wong Tiong and Ms Phoebe So, continued a research project funded by the Competitive Earmarked Research Grant (CERG) scheme. Entitled 'China South-East Asia: Challenges. Opportunities and the Re-construction of South-East Asian Chinese Ethnic Capital' (9040959), this project received funding of HKD516,508 over 30 months. It examines the nature of interactions between the governments and societies of China and South-East Asia following sustained economic growth in the post-Cold War era. Change has intensified following the Asian economic crisis, which altered the positions of China relative South-East Asia in the global economy. The current literature focuses on formal institutions such as ASEAN+3 and on government-centred bilateral relationships. This project examines three other important changes: (i) changing investment relationships; (ii) changing South-East Asian government policies towards China and towards South-East Asian populations of Chinese descent: and the reconstruction of relations between South-East Asian Chinese and China. The focus is on Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand. During June-July 2006, Dr Chan and Mr Tiong carried out fieldwork in Singapore and Malaysia. The project is scheduled for completion in May 2007.

In August 2006, former SEARC Director Professor Kevin Hewison, collaborating with Dr Catherine Chiu (AIS) and Dr Bill Taylor (SA), completed a research project that had been funded by a CERG grant. project, entitled 'Hong Kong Investment and Labour Strategies in Thailand, Cambodia and Vietnam' (9040850),received funding HKD711,000 over 30 months. This project was motivated by debates over whether transnational corporations (TNCs) investing in developing countries exploit workers by paying them relatively low wages and subjecting them to abusive coercive, and/or unsafe conditions in the workplace. With the opening of developing economies to foreign direct investment (FDI), Hong Kong has emerged as the second largest investor in Asia, and has been among the top investors in parts of South-East Asia. Thus, this project examined investment by small- and medium-sized enterprises from Hong Kong in three countries of South-East Asia (Thailand, Cambodia and Vietnam), especially in light of labour relations and compliance with international and local norms and practices. This project aims to test how small and medium-sized Hong Kong manufacturing enterprises link with local labour forces, comparing their approach with international, Hong Kong and local labour norms.

In seeking additional external funding during 2006, SEARC Director Professor William Case and Associate Director Dr Vivienne Wee made CERG applications for 2007-2008. Professor Case submitted a proposal entitled, 'Can Legislatures Hold Governments More Accountable Under Contemporary Authoritarianism than in New Democracies? Evidence from East Asia'. Dr Wee proposed a project entitled 'Indonesian Women Migrants as Transnational Muslims in Hong Kong'.

University grants

- In January 2006, Dr Vivienne Wee completed project, 'On the Production of Transnational Spaces Through Networking Processes in South-East Asia: Reassessing the Ethnic Chinese Diaspora' (7001507), supported by a Strategic Research Grant. This project received HKD147,460 in funding. It addressed questions over how ethnic Chinese entrepreneurs in South-East Asia have engaged multiple forms of networking, through which different types of capital have transformed in wavs been transcend nation-state boundaries. The project traced the contours transnational mapping spaces bv linkages supraand between sub-national spaces.
- In August 2006, Dr Catherine Chiu, as principal investigator, completed entitled 'Investment project South-East Asia: What is Hong Kong's Role?' (7001651), supported by a Strategic Research Grant. The project received HKD158,921 in funding. It examined the role played by Hong Kong in mediating foreign direct investment (FDI) flows from East Asia to South-East Asia. Rather than seeking a conventional cultural explanation, this project began by focusing on production. Viewing FDI as increasingly embedded in commodity driven networks and contract manufacturing chains, this research utilized firm-level data to map and better understand FDI in Cambodia, Thailand, Malaysia, Vietnam and Indonesia. It investigated how firm-level data permits a more nuanced picture that better flows reflects FDI within production networks. Thus, this project provided a more complete understanding - of Hong Kong's role as a regional investment hub.

- During 2006, Dr Vivienne Wee continued her project entitled 'Illegal Indonesian Women Migrants in Hong Kong and Macau: Policy Implications'. The grant (grant type: Other Miscellaneous Research Projects) was awarded by the Faculty of Humanities and Sciences in May 2005 for HKD59,999 over 12 months, but was extended during 2006 until May 2007 (with a final report submission date of February 2008). Using an innovative framework of 'cultural economy', this study addresses the causes and motivations of illegal migration and settlement by Indonesian domestic workers in Hong Kong and Macau. It will lead to specific policy recommendations for the suitable management of these temporary migration flows, with implications for policies of labour export, import and management, and for international relations between sending and recipient states.

RESEARCH OUTPUT

SEARC's research outputs are discussed in various parts of this report and are listed in Appendix A. With the Centre in transition, its publications record was somewhat less substantial than it had been in earlier years. Nonetheless, there were some significant achievements that augur well for the next few years (see below table).

| SEARC Research Outputs 2006 | | |

Among its most notable achievements has been the establishment of the RoutledgeCurzon/City University of Hong Kong South-East Asia Studies series, with Dr Vivienne Wee serving as editor. This series enhances the Centre's international reputation as a centre of research excellence. To date, six titles have been published. A volume edited by Dr Wee entitled Political Fragmentation in South-East Asia is scheduled to be published in 2007.

COLLABORATION AND PUBLICITY

Collaboration

The Centre has a range of collaborative arrangements with individual researchers, Centres and other universities. These include:

- Murdoch University, Perth, Australia
- The Institute of Social Studies, The Hague, The Netherlands
- Universiti Sains Malaysia, Penang, Malaysia
- National University of Singapore, Singapore
- Centre for Asia Pacific Social Transformation Studies, Wollongong University, Wollongong, Australia
- Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia
- Centre for South-East Asian Studies, Xiamen University, Xiamen, China
- Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, Thailand
- Carolina Asia Center, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, United States

In 2006, SEARC proposed setting up a university outreach program by which to expand its contacts with centres of Asian and South-East Asian research in other parts of the world. If this proposal goes ahead, this will accord with CityU's declared commitments to internationalization.

Publicity

SEARC has enjoyed an impressive amount of local, regional and international publicity. Core members and Centre research staff have often been quoted in the press on South-East Asian affairs and issues. The range of outlets includes: Asian Wall Street Journal, International Herald Tribune, Financial Times, South China Morning Post, Associated Press, Reuters, CNNi, BBC, Star TV, Voice of America and Chinese-language South-East Asian-language and newspapers and magazines. During 2006, Professor William Case was interviewed twice by Radio Television Hong (RTHK) and once by Star TV about September's military coup in Thailand, once by Voice of America about the 2006 UMNO General Assembly in Malaysia, and twice by Hong Kong-based Apple Daily about various South-East Asian issues. Dr Chan Yuk Wah was twice invited by RTHK as guest host for Radio 5's 'Civil Society and Tourism' programme. Dr Vivienne Wee has received extensive media coverage for the WEMC project, including radio, TV, Chinese and English newspapers.

SEARC maintains a comprehensive web site (http://www.cityu.edu.hk/searc). However, given the changes in the Centre's membership and research focus, its website began a fundamental overhaul in 2006. Many areas of SEARC's operations and funding must become clearer, though, before changes in content can be completed. On the other hand, as part of its web site, the Centre has moved forward in trying to revive its Working Paper Series. This series once attracted a large number of hits and highly favourable feedback. By December 2006, 82 working papers were available for download. Two years ago, there were 21,500 hits on the Working Papers page. A year later, this had increased to 28,000. During 2006, the number of submissions and postings slowed dramatically. SEARC is now restoring the series to its former prominence. posting papers written by its core members and contacting outside contributors.

ACADEMIC AND PUBLIC EVENTS

SEARC regularly organizes academic workshops and seminars, as well as public events in various formats. These events frequently involve international participants, thus increasing CityU's exposure and strengthening its cross-national links. Usually held on university premises, they have generated considerable publicity for CityU, raising its intellectual vibrancy and civic vitality. SEARC has thus continued this tradition, hosting a number of events during 2006 (see Appendix B).

EVALUATION

SEARC was externally reviewed in November 2004 and very positively assessed, confirming its standing as a world class research centre able to help enhance the international profile of CitvU. reputation was also reflected in its frequent production of special issues and features of international journals, well publication of six titles through RoutledgeCurzon/City University of Hong Kong South-East Asia Studies book series. These books have sold well, been favourably reviewed, and have attracted expressions of continuing support from the publisher.

During 2005 and the first half of 2006, however, after the departure of SEARC's founding Director and the decline in its resources, SEARC's standing appeared to weaken. Thus, during the second half of 2006, a campaign to revitalize SEARC was started. To lead this effort, Professor William Case was appointed as the new Director in July. A senior research fellowship was also advertised and applicants were sought whose reputations gave confidence that they would contribute to the Centre's scholarly vibrancy and research output. At the end of the year, an offer was made to Dr Jan Stark, based at the Centre for Development Research in Bonn, Germany, and an expert in political Islam in South-East and Central Asia. Dr Stark, fluent in Malay/Indonesian, Arabic, Persian, English and German, and with publications in several international journals of comparative politics, accepted SEARC's offer and began a one-year appointment in January 2007. SEARC hopes to make an additional appointment of a (senior) research fellow in connection with the new attention that will be given to the politics, economy, and society of contemporary Vietnam.

SEARC will also benefit from its new location in the Department of AIS. Meanwhile, its researchers continue to receive invitations to present their research internationally at workshops and conference panels, observe elections overseas, and provide media commentary to local and international outlets. They are also active in applying for competitive external while publishing articles high-quality international journals and books from highly regarded publishers. A seventh title (mentioned above), Political Fragmentation in South-East Asia, edited by Vivienne Wee, is scheduled for publication in 2007 through the RoutledgeCurzon/CityUniversity of Hong Kong South-East Asia Studies series.

ACADEMIC AND PUBLIC EVENTS

Academic workshop

In 10-13 December 2006, Dr Vivienne Wee hosted a four-day workshop entitled 'Women's Empowerment in Muslim Contexts: Gender, Poverty, and Democratization from the Inside Out, End of Inception Phase Workshop'. This workshop was attended by some forty scholars and activists, in connection with the inception of her five-year WEMC project. These scholars and activists were drawn from four different countries and many different institutions and organizations, adding greatly to CityU's profile and international standing. The workshop was followed by a closed-door Advisory Meeting (16-17 Dec 2006) with the WEMC Consortium Advisory Group, represented by Dr Noeleen Heyzer (Executive Director, UNIFEM) Professor Elisabeth Croll (Professor of Chinese Anthropology, Vice-Principal of External Affairs, Vice-Principal, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London), Ms Zaitun Kasim (Programme Manager and Chief Trainer, Sisters in Islam), Ms Tracy Tasker (Team Leader, Social, Political and Environmental Change Team, DFID), Mr Gerard Howe (Senior Adviser, Gender and Human Rights, DFID).
